What's Ahead

- Understanding consent
- About acquaintance rape
- Rape myths and facts
- What can I do if I am sexually assaulted?
- What can I do if I experience or witness sexual harassment?

Definitions

- Sexual harassment – Unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature
- Sexual battery/indecent assault – Unwanted touching of intimate parts, not just sexual organs, outside or inside the clothing (depending on the state)
- Sexual assault – Unwanted sexual touching inside clothing
- Rape – The most extreme form of sexual assault. Rape definitions vary by state but typically include:
 - Unwanted vaginal or anal penetration with any body part or foreign object
 - Oral penetration by a sex organ of another person

Understanding Consent

- You must give and receive consent before any type of physical intimacy begins.
- Absence of consent is what determines if the contact is unwanted.
- Consent must be freely given, not coerced, enthusiastic, not reluctant, and is reversible.
 - Consent can be reversed or withdrawn at any time.
 - Consent is NEVER given by someone who is asleep or under the influence of drugs or alcohol.
- See the SASH Club Power Topics Presentation “Boundaries and Consent” for more information.

About Acquaintance Rape

- Acquaintance rape – Any rape committed by someone who knows the victim.
- No relationship excuses rape. A rapist can be a family member, neighbor, friend, classmate, teacher, coach, boss, community or religious leader, date, significant other, or even spouse.

If there is no consent, it's rape. Period.

How Common is Acquaintance Rape and Who is Most at Risk?

- Across all ages, 70% of rape and sexual assault victims know their attacker prior to the assault.
- Over 80% of sexual assaults on college campuses are committed by someone the victim knows.
- Victims of rape who are under age 18 know their offender prior to the incident 90% of the time.

Those under 18 are the most vulnerable to acquaintance rape.

The Impact of Acquaintance Rape on Survivors

- Is it any less traumatizing to be raped by an acquaintance than a stranger? It is not less traumatizing; it is still rape.
- Acquaintance rape can trigger PTSD, depression, anxiety, eating disorders, chronic pain conditions, addictions, thoughts of self harm, and a host of other problems just like rape by a stranger.
 - This betrayal of trust by an acquaintance can cause additional long-lasting emotional injuries.
 - Survivors may classify their experience as something other than rape and therefore be less inclined to seek help.

It is a rape myth to assume that rape by an acquaintance is less harmful than rape by a stranger.

Talk About It

- How well do you think most teens understand the importance of giving and receiving consent?
- Are you surprised that 90% of rape survivors under the age of 18 know their offender? Why or why not?
- How many movies or TV shows have you seen that portray rape by a stranger in a dark alley vs. by an acquaintance? How does this compare to real life statistics?
- What societal factors might contribute to acquaintance rape?

Rape Myths Defined

- Rape myths are false beliefs people hold about sexual assault that shift blame from the perpetrator to the survivor.
- These false statements not only shame survivors into silence, they also contribute to a culture that misunderstands and minimizes sexual assault, dating violence, and stalking.
- Using rape myths is also called “victim blaming,” and is unfortunately very common in our society.

Rape Myths

Myth:

If a rape survivor did not fight back or cry for help, it must not have been rape.

Fact:

- Many survivors experience a “freeze response” during an assault where they physically cannot move or speak.
- Threats, fear, shock, or the size and strength of the attacker may also discourage a victim from fighting. They may think fighting back will cause the attacker to become more violent.
- Victims may try to talk the perpetrator into stopping, especially if it is an acquaintance.
- The fear that someone else will see or hear what is happening could cause a victim to stay silent.
- Whether or not someone physically fought their attacker does not determine whether it was rape.

Rape Myths

Myth:

After a rape, the survivor will be hysterical and crying.

Fact:

- Everyone responds differently to trauma – some may cry, some may laugh, and others may be in shock and unable to show any emotion at all.
- There is no correct or incorrect way to react to trauma.
- Whether or not someone is hysterical or crying does not determine whether it was rape.

Rape Myths

Myth:

Wearing revealing clothing, behaving provocatively, or drinking a lot means the victim was “asking for it.”

Fact:

No one asks for rape. No one ever causes someone to commit a crime against them.

Rape Myths

Myth:

A lot of victims lie about being raped or “cry rape.”

Fact:

- Multiple studies conclude only 2-8% of rape accusations are false, the same percentage as false reports for other felonies.
- It is much more common for a rape survivor to stay silent and not report the crime to anyone than to falsely report a rape.
- Yet 60% of men and 51% of women believe that false accusations of sexual assault against men are “very common.”

Rape Myths

Myth:

Rape is an act of lust and passion that can't be controlled.

Fact:

- Rape is about power, control and inflicting violence and humiliation; rape is not motivated by sexual gratification.
- Many rapists will intentionally choose someone they perceive to be vulnerable: someone smaller, weaker, isolated, or trusting.

Rape Myths

Myth:

If you hadn't been drinking/high, you wouldn't have been raped.

Fact:

- Alcohol and drugs are weapons that some perpetrators use to control their victim and render them helpless.
- An assailant may encourage the victim to use alcohol/drugs, or may target an individual who is already drunk/high or even asleep.
- Alcohol and drugs (and sleep) are not causes of rape; they are tools perpetrators may use to commit a crime.
- See the “Alcohol and Date Rape Drugs” SASH Club Power Topics presentation for more information.

Rape Myths

Myth:

Only women get raped.

Fact:

- Males can be, and are, sexually assaulted. Sexual assault of males is thought to be greatly underreported. Any male can be sexually assaulted regardless of size, strength, sexual orientation, or appearance.
- LGBTQ+ people experience sexual violence at higher rates than their non-LGBTQ+ peers. LGBTQ+ survivors often receive less support than their peers because of discrimination and misunderstanding of their experiences.

Rape Myths

Myth:

Serial rapists are uncommon.

Fact:

- Most rapes are perpetrated by serial rapists.
- Rapists choose coercion, violence, threats, or deception to assault people on a repeated basis.
- It is rare for a person to only commit rape once.

Rape Myths

Myth:

If a person was physically aroused during a rape, they must have enjoyed it, so it wasn't really rape.

Fact:

Physical biological arousal reactions are not an indication of consensual activity, but are often used to shame and silence survivors.

Rape Myths

Myth:

If a rape really happened, the survivor will report it to the police right away.

Fact:

- Rape is one of the most underreported crimes in our society. 50-90% of rapes go unreported.
- Many survivors do not report out of shame, fear of being blamed, concern for not being believed, and/or fear of retaliation.
- About half of criminal cases will bring a conviction, but because of low reporting, the sad fact is that only 6% of rapists will ever spend a day in jail. 15 of every 16 rapists walk free.

Talk About It

- What rape myths have you heard, seen portrayed in media, or seen played out in publicized trials? Think about movies, television, and song lyrics.
- What rape myths do you think are most common and why?
- Think about the reasons a survivor would keep silent. Is there anything we can do to increase reporting so the perpetrators are held accountable?

Do More

- A society that believes rape myths creates a “rape culture.” How can we change this culture?
- How can we share what we have learned about acquaintance rape and rape myths with our school/organization and community?
- Can everyone in the room share one thing they learned today and one thing they will commit to doing to move forward?

- Do not:
 - Wash, comb your hair, or clean any part of your body
 - Brush your teeth
 - Change clothes, if possible, so the hospital nurse can collect evidence
 - Touch or change anything at the scene of the assault
- Seek medical attention ASAP at your nearest hospital ER:
 - You need to be examined, treated for any injuries, checked for possible sexually transmitted infections (STIs) or pregnancy, and can receive preventative medicine.
 - The nurse or doctor will collect evidence the attacker may have left behind.
- Ask hospital staff to connect you with a local rape crisis center.

If You are Sexually Harassed
